

To the Honourable Judge Vanessa V. Christie,

In response to paragraph 15 of the Endorsement / Order issued on October 30, 2024 regarding the costs of this motion, the Plaintiff is seeking that I be responsible for $6,000.00. At no point in time has the Plaintiff ever been reasonable. I do not have any money. I live on the Ontario Disability Support Program (ODSP). If I'm ordered to pay them any amount at all, there's a good chance I'll commit suicide instead. There's a threshold on the amount of injustice I can endure. There's a good chance I've already reached this threshold.

For nearly a decade, the Plaintiff has wreaked havoc on my mental health to such an extent that I can no longer hold down any kind of employment. The affects of this have compounded at an exponential rate over time.

- I've reached out to +530 lawyers/law firms to try to get legal assistance and I've had no luck.
- Legal Aid has told me twice that they do not support civil cases, or launch any kind of case against criminals.
- The local community legal clinic does not "do" civil or criminal matters.
- It appears the Human Rights Tribunal of Ontario isn't concerned about any of this.

I don't know how to file this through the civil JSO portal, so I'll go to the Barrie courthouse tomorrow and file it there, or ask them how to do it online. Most of the desk clerks are not helpful though.

If I'm no longer here to defend myself, please note I have removed all negative commentary about Barrie Housing from Facebook and my website. It took me nine hours to come to grips with this order. Additionally, everything Riley Brooks spoke about in the urgent motion on Oct. 29th had previously been removed at least a week prior. I did that because I couldn't handle knowing how many people know what's going on and chose to do nothing about it.

Sincerely,
Leah Dyck
